		critical thinking and empathy. The facilitator guided students in linking these principles to corporate social responsibility and ethical leadership. The activity promoted collaborative learning and encouraged students to think beyond profit maximization towards holistic well-being. It also highlighted the importance of moral values in building sustainable organizations. The session ended with a reflection exercise where students shared insights on how they can apply these teachings in their personal and professional lives. The activity successfully reinforced ethical awareness and value-based decision-making among students.
