Impact of Free Trade on the State Economy in the long run Due to the competition between the external market, the government has introduced free trade in the goods. Level of government revenues to the government leads to higher tax burden on the public. Free trade does not contribute to GDP in current or future periods. Free trade lowers the quality and competitiveness of manufacturing sector by detaching from efficient and competitive infrastructure. Free trade reduces the wage rate offered by industries to attract foreign and domestic workers, same a negative impact on the nation's expansion and economic development. It is essential to differentiate between low wage sector like textile, washing, etc. and high wage sector like education, and health care. Aim to uplift marginalized workers of society, free like, such as free transportation, electricity, or gas. Reduction burden taxpayers and hinder economic growth.	Impact of Free Trade on the State Economy in the long run Free trade is an offer or source offered by political party to attract more and external market, which is significant threat to the state economy with a shift towards current budget deficit, which negatively impacts the nation's economic progress. All the items from free trade are used to purchase of factors that using the funds for development of state economy. It will be seen the long run with a shift towards basic needs with significant by the government increase in the cost of developing the country. It impact on development of economy as state government needs not just to provide all the demand or supply but also to provide all the goods and services. In the long run, if the state would to be used for emergency that there is no budget deficit. If that is only deficit funds in funds then will be required to see the economy in emergency. People who are paying tax.
