Report on workshop participation by Dr. C B Venkata Krishna Prasad on "Mentoring the Millennial" on Saturday, January 12, 2019 at Dayananda Sagar University (Campus 3), Kudlu Gate, Bangalore.

Purpose of the Workshop: To bring about a psycho-spiritual awareness among the teaching faculty about mentoring students, managers in mentoring their young colleagues and parents their children through an experiential learning. The workshop will serve to develop a plan of action in dealing with a generation that is the future and in providing mentors with workable tools for creating that action plan.

Resource Person: Prof. Kisholoy Gupta

Content Delivered in the workshop:

Jean Twenge, the author of the 2006 book "Generation Me", considers millennials, along with younger members of Generation X, to be part of what she calls "Generation Me". Twenge attributes millennials with the traits of confidence and tolerance, but also describes a sense of entitlement and narcissism, based on personality surveys showing increased narcissism among millennials compared to preceding generations when they were teens and in their twenties.

There are vast, and conflicting, amounts of literature and empirical studies discussing the existence of generational differences as it pertains to the workplace.

The majority of research concludes millennials differ from both their generational cohort predecessors, and can be characterized by a preference for a flat corporate culture, an emphasis on work-life balance and social consciousness and are quite different in the way they view life and work, creating challenges at school and work.
